How to solve a word search

1. Every word in the list is hidden in the grid. Find it, then draw a line through it or circle it, and tick it off the list.
2. Words run in a straight line in any of eight directions: left to right, right to left, downwards, upwards, and along all four diagonals.
3. Words can cross one another and share a letter, but each word appears only once, and the letters between the words are never part of an answer.
4. The grid has fifteen rows and fifteen columns and every list has twenty words. The solutions at the back show each word outlined.

A few ways in

- Start with the longest words, and with words that have an unusual letter — a Q, a Z, an X or a J is easy to spot, and there are not many of them in a grid.
- Scan for the first letter of a word row by row, and every time you find one, look at all eight neighbours for the second letter.
- Double letters, like the two Ls in YELLOW, stand out; hunt for the pair.
- If a word will not show itself, try reading backwards; leave it and come back.

The right-hand grid is how the solutions at the back are drawn: every answer is outlined, whichever way it runs.
